

Upland council approves budget of $17.75 million

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Projects that failed to get off the ground in the last 12 months helped push planned expenditures over $17.75 million in the budget adopted Monday night by the Upland City Council.

After an executive session, the council approved the budget for the current fiscal year on a 4-1 vote, with Bill Bottin dissenting.

Mayor George Gibson said the approval includes modifications made by council since the budget was drafted in May, but postpones proposed employee reclassifications pending further study.

Among those reclassifications were a reorganization of the engineering department that would establish an engineering director as the top post.

City Engineer Fred Blanchard has suggested the reorganization, saying the new post would free him from some of the more routine aspects of being city engineer.

The shift would also elevate Assistant City Engineer John Wisz to city engineer, and Blanchard recommended last month that 10 percent salary increases accompany the move. The council took no action on either request.

Explaining his vote after the meeting, Bottin said, "I feel there's fat in the budget that could be taken out."

He singled out capital improvement projects that he said could be delayed. The projects, such as street improvements, total more than $4 million this year compared to $500,000 last year, he added.

Bottin also questioned staff additions for the current year.

Most of the staff additions resulted from the city phasing out participation in U.S. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) programs. Some of these federally funded positions are being transferred to the city payroll.

Finance Director Anthony Andrade attributed most of the $1 million increase in appropriations over the budget figure originally proposed as stemming from projects that did not attract bids last year or had the bids rejected by council.

These carryover projects include improvements on several streets that brought a bid of just over $400,000 in June, exceeding consultants' estimates by $100,000. Two Mountain Avenue projects that received no bids account for another $435,000.

Projected expenditures now total $17,754,494, while revenues, less affected by the budget revisions, come to $16,730,510.

Andrade said increased state funding for the Euclid Avenue traffic-improvement project, due to higher expected costs, accounts for most of the revenue increase.

In addition to carryover projects, Andrade noted budget revisions include council-approved contributions to community groups and $46,000 more in federal revenue-sharing funds than originally forecast.

That extra revenue was used toward budgeting $100,000 in lasting sidewalk repairs, the first maintenance work beyond asphalt patching undertaken by the city in a year.

Some other features of the budget are:

— A 7.5 percent salary increase for city employees that adds about $350,000 total to expenditures over the year.

— More than $1 million, largely in federal funds, for a traffic-improvement project on Euclid Avenue.

Residents questioned the project last month, and the council agreed to call further hearings on the project sometime later this year.

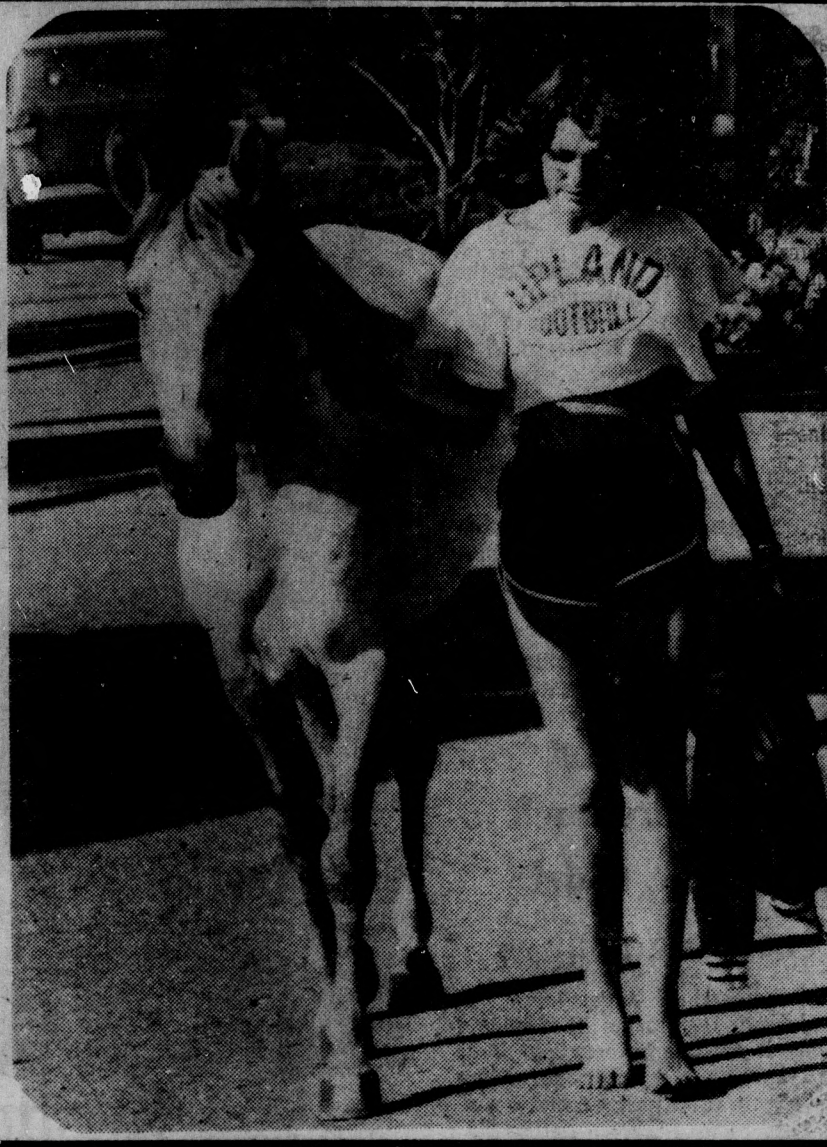

— Conversion of the library's card catalog to a microfilm computerized system beginning this year. The initial cost is $15,890.

— Computerized base mapping of the city to provide better information for the planning department. The cost has been estimated at $20,000.

— Full funding of electrical bills, including lighting for night baseball, for youth sports groups using city playing fields.

Court rules against Upland project

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

A petition seeking to force the city of Upland to approve plans for a three-story professional office building has been rejected in West Valley Superior Court.

Judge Duke Rouse denied the request last week for a writ of mandate sought by Civic Professional Center for compelling the city to issue a building permit for the proposed building at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and D Street.

Civic Professional Center, said Thursday an appeal is being considered by the three partners, James Banks Jr., Kenneth Glube and Rollen Cox, the property owner.

A key question in the case was whether the developers were exempt from Upland's standards on providing parking, because the .38-acre lot is located in Zone A of the city's parking and business improvement area.

Both the planning commission and the city council unanimously rejected the partners' request for a conditional-use permit last year.

The developers proposed placing just two parking spaces on site, for handicapped persons, and leasing an area from Southern Pacific Transportation (railroad) Co. for 19 more spaces.

While the parking question was focus of discussion before the commission and council, other city concerns expressed were over the inadequate size of the property for its intended use, impairment of surrounding properties' development and the height of the structure (52 feet).

Gassner has referred to these added concerns as "make weight" findings.

The municipal code says the "parking requirements for the P.U.C.C. (planned unit civic center) district shall be deemed to be fulfilled as to any property which is included in a duly organized Municipal Parking District."

Relief from off-street parking requirements for properties assessed and contributing to the parking and business improvement fund in Zone A is 100 percent, the code states.

Referring to the developers, Gassner said, "They are convinced there are no (parking) requirements."

City Attorney Donald Maroney noted any property improvements amounting to more than $5,000 or a change in use of the property requires a conditional-use permit in the P.U.C.C. zone.

"We had always felt that the conditional-use permit allowed us to make additional requirements in the district," Maroney said, adding that the permit requirement in effect overrides the language exempting parking.

He argued that if the petitioner's case worked for a three-story building, the same logic could apply to a 10-story proposal.

Planning Director Bill Young told the council last year that even with the most favorable interpretation of code requirements the project needed 96 parking spaces based on the building's floor area.

Maroney said that during the years the property was used for a real estate office, about $1,465 was paid in business license fees to the parking and business improvement assessment district formed in 1966.

That amount could probably pay for one space today, he added, saying, "If they proved their contention they would be getting quite a bargain."

Both attorneys said Judge Rouse did not detail his reasons for denying the writ of mandate.

Yoga classes slated at new Upland studio

A class designed to teach couples intimacy through yoga will be the highlight of the new Belle Tuckerman Yoga Studio when it moves to an Upland location.

Special yoga classes stressing training techniques for athletes, creative dance for youths, weight reduction for adults and nutrition ideas for senior citizens will be offered in late July and early August.

The classes will be coordinated and conducted through the Belle Tuckerman Yoga Studio, 1047 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland. More information is available by calling 981-0600.

Belle Tuckerman, owner-instructor, is a certified yoga expert who has studied with Clara Spring, author of "Yoga for Today." Tuckerman has also taught for the Upland Recreation Department.

She says she teaches the techniques of Hatha, a yoga based on deep breathing techniques and how they relate to exercise, muscle control and nutrition to overcome stress, aging and depression.

"Stress is the silent killer because the body keeps building up tension," Tuckerman says. "But yoga is the most effective method of stress reduction known."

Yoga is also easy to learn and fun to do, she says. "Anyone can come in from a busy schedule, do a series of stretches, and then go back to work feeling much better."

Athletes can use yoga exercises in training because yoga stretches muscles, Tuckerman says. "You can cut down on injuries by eliminating tension in the body."

Senior citizens can also use yoga to improve respiration, increase blood circulation, lubricate internal organs and slow down the aging process.

The "yoga for couples" idea is exciting to Tuckerman because "it's never been done before anywhere in the area."

When couples learn yoga techniques together, "they begin to understand each other's bodies, which leads to improved communication about each other's personalities and emotions," she says.

"The eye-to-eye contact, the communication of thought and the closeness of energy puts people back into physical contact, which lacks in a lot of relationships."

Because couples aid each other as they learn stretching and breathing exercises, "it puts men and women on an equal level with each other, and reduces stress over who has control," Tuckerman says.

2 skylights slated to be repaired

By PEGGY ZIEGLER
Staff Writer

Two of the five skylights at Upland High School, where four persons have fallen through, are slated for repair, but probably not until after school begins this fall.

According to Russell Dickinson, assistant superintendent for the Chaffey Joint Union High School District, the school board recently allocated money to have two skylights repaired.

It is estimated the job will cost between $10,000 and $12,000, Dickinson said.

The school district had discussed constructing wood barriers around the skylights previously, but plans were scotched last year with the advent of Proposition 13, Dickinson reported.

Only two of the five buildings with 200-foot-long skylights will be repaired because of cost restraints, Dickinson said.

All five would cost in the neighborhood of $25,000.

"The board was concerned about the cost and was happy that maybe the problem could be corrected by only repairing two, since there have only been problems on two buildings," he said.

The action by the school district came on the heels of public criticism by the Upland Fire Department that the skylights were dangerous and had reported three teen-agers had crashed through the glass attempting to retrieve balls from the roof.

Since that time another youth has fallen through a skylight, Battalion Chief Gary Edwards said.

He said the youth did not fall all the way through, but was able to catch himself before falling 15 feet to concrete below. The youth did, however, suffer cuts on his arms, Edwards said.

Compounding the problem is the fact the skylights are painted over to block the light, Edwards said. They are virtually indistinguishable from the roof, he said.

While the fire department is pushing that something be done immediately to correct the situation, the school district has run into bureaucracy problems.

Because the job is estimated to cost over $8,000, the district by law has to send the job out to contractors for bid, Dickinson said.

First the district has to draw up specifications then advertise for bids and award a contract.

"It will take three weeks just to advertise," Dickinson said.

He indicated that because of personnel on vacation at the present time and through the summer, it would be difficult to complete the job before summer is over.

"If we wait until after school starts, there will be problems to fit it (the work) in with classes operating," he said.

Residential construction drops in Upland

Upland building figures in the first half of 1979 declined compared to the same period last year, and the slowdown in residential construction was marked by a 45 percent drop in the number of houses receiving building permits.

Through June, Upland has issued building permits for 227 single-family homes having a total valuation of $15.28 million.

In the first half of 1978, the city granted permits for 415 single-family homes with a valuation of $26.71 million.

Permits for eight apartment units have been issued so far this year, compared to 167 units for the first six months of 1978.

Figures for new commercial and industrial construction are also down, although the drop is not as sharp.

City officials and others close to the housing industry cited several causes for the drop in new housing starts in Upland.

Generally heading the list were the increasing cost of new housing and high interest rates. Other factors mentioned included the influence of past moratoriums and continued limits on sewer connections, along with the city's two-year-old growth management plan.

City Manager Lee Travers said, "I think it's being observed all over the area. Higher priced houses are not selling as well as before."

Eugene Bello — outgoing president of the Upland Chamber of Commerce and owner of an Upland realty firm — said the cost of a new home weighs more heavily in the slowdown than currently high interest rates.

A home priced at $60,000 purchased at a 12 percent interest rate will move on the market while a $250,000 home at 10 percent will not, he said.

Ken Willis — executive director of the Baldy View Chapter of the Building Industry Association — said many people fail to realize that when they are paying over 11 percent interest for a conventional mortgage builders are paying more for their construction loans, also contributing to the slowdown.

Is Upland's boom in residential construction of the past several years over?

After piling up records in building permits and total valuation for new homes through 1977, the figures dropped off slightly in 1978.

The city issued permits for 839 single-family homes last year compared to 918 in 1977, but permits for multiple-family homes rose from 176 to 277 units.

Both categories are well behind last year's pace for the first six months.

Willis said, "Upland's seen its last major building boom."

Residential development is approaching the point where Upland will gradually become a built-out city, Willis indicated. Construction of homes is now geared to "infilling" undeveloped pockets, he said.

Asked if recent levels of building activity could be repeated, Willis said, "I can't see on the map where they're going to put it."

Planning Director Bill Young does not see Upland as being so close to full residential development, noting future decisions — such as opening up some flood-control acreage — could make additional land available.

Bello said he does not believe the city will return to recent levels of residential construction, but added the construction pace is still "healthy."

He added that the slowdown — which he attributed in part to regional limits on new sewer connections catching up with the building figures this year — is helping keep the supply of new homes more in line with current demand.

Young said the city's growth management plan has been a factor in the building slowdown, but not nearly to the extent as the economics of the housing industry.

Of 868 units approved in the review year 1977-78, approvals for 311 units expired without advancing to the building permit stage. Although extensions are tougher to get under growth management, Young said the expired projects point to builders' evaluation of a slow market.

While calling it a "mistake" to say growth management alone is responsible for a downturn, Willis said the plan coupled with the city's preference for low-density development, fees typically exceeding $4,000 per new home and land-use decisions have led to high-priced homes people are currently "dubious about pursuing."

The policies lead developers to build homes that sell for over $80,000 in Upland, Willis said, noting more moderate-priced homes elsewhere in the county have a better market potential.

Young called all building booms "cyclical" and said technological breakthroughs, development of major employment centers and increases in the regional sewer allocations are among the factors that could change the demand outlook.

Board okays contracts for 53 doctors

The board of supervisors approved contracts Monday for 53 doctors in training at the county medical center in San Bernardino. The contracts will run for the year starting July 1.

Forty-two doctors have been assigned to the family practice residency program, the medical center's largest. Eight will serve in the obstetrics - gynecology residency program. The others will hold flexible internships.

The residents will work under the supervision of professionals who double as faculty members of the UCLA School of Medicine. The county medical center's education and training programs are affiliated with UCLA.

The doctors will be paid $14,616 to $19,128, depending upon the level of their residency. The family practice residency program is three years. The obstetrics - gynecology program lasts four years.

The medical center provides care to those who cannot obtain it or who cannot afford it elsewhere.

Supervisors back electronic court recording gear

The board of supervisors has endorsed legislation that would make it possible for courts to allow the use of electronic recording devices in their proceedings.

The bill, SB 703 by Sen. Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, gives the courts the discretion to permit electronic devices to record proceedings. Proceedings are now recorded by stenographers.

The supervisors supported the bill because of its potential for savings, as indicated through studies by the County Supervisors' Association of California.

Council gives funds for 2 youth groups

The Upland City Council has allocated $2,906 for the current fiscal year to the West End Boys' Club Inc. and worked out an arrangement with the American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) to provide $15,000 toward paving a parking lot.

In action July 2, the council granted the full amount sought by the Boys' Club, adding to the $7,250 pledged in city contributions to eight community organizations on June 19.

The Boys' Club request had been postponed until a club representative could appear before the council. In exchange for the $15,000, AYSO has agreed to maintain the soccer fields being developed at Cabrillo Park for one year. The soccer group will provide the equipment, including a special lawn mower.

The park is located on 11th Street east of Benson

Avenue. The money was allocated from the city's park development fund. The council also agreed to Ina Petokas' suggestion that she and Frank Hoover continue as the council's ad hoc committee for Cabrillo Park to help formulate policy on year-round use of the soccer fields.

Six clean air measures okayed by supervisors

The board of supervisors agreed Monday to proceed with six measures local governments have been asked to adopt to help clean up Southern California's dirty air.

The six measures are part of a plan that is intended to achieve federal air quality standards in four Southern California counties by the end of 1987.

The supervisors agreed:

- To promote the sharing of rides among 8,000 county employees by distributing information and applications from Commuter Computer, a matching service.
- To direct the county transportation department to study whether synchronized traffic signal systems should be installed to improve traffic flow along some county roads. The supervisors asked for a report by Dec. 31.
- To encourage the use of car pools by setting aside parking spaces in county-owned lots. This is already a county policy.
- Car pools are intended to get more people into fewer cars, reducing pollution and saving energy.

— To support Southern California Edison Co. in the installation of energy-efficient street lights. That would reduce the need to burn polluting fuels.

Supervisors' Chairman James L. Mayfield said more street lights should be shut off and removed where they are not needed, particularly in his desert district.

— To ask the South Coast Air Quality Management District to study whether construction of additional sidewalks and bicycle paths will be effective in getting people out of their cars.

"We question whether this works and is really worthwhile for reducing air pollution," Kenneth C. Topping, county planning director, said.

— To instruct department heads to consider the use of flexible scheduling for their employees. That is intended to reduce traffic congestion during peak hours.

Chaffey board allots $5,000 for legal help

The Chaffey Joint Union High School District board of trustees Monday allotted $5,000 to hire a legal firm to work out a school finance program to add facilities in the Rancho Cucamonga area.

Half that amount will be paid by the Building Industry Association, said Russ Dickinson, assistant superintendent for business services.

The BIA has held two meetings with school officials regarding building a new high school in Rancho Cucamonga. The purpose is to relieve overcrowding at Alta Loma High School and accommodate future growth in the area.

The legal firm is needed because of complications in obtaining funding, explained Dickinson. Several proposals, including establishing an assessment district, may be illegal under provisions of Proposition 13.

Senior's News

By LINDA BERGSTEDT
Panorama Editor

There is all kinds of news this month for senior citizens about services available to them, meetings scheduled and a new name for the local West End United Way agency serving them.

The former West End Senior Citizens Coordinating Program has become the West End Senior Citizen Coordinating Service or simplified, Senior Citizens Service.

'Postal Alert'

A Postal Alert program has been announced by the San Bernardino County Office on Aging as a cooperative effort between the office and the U.S. Post Office in California.

The purpose of the Postal Alert is to provide senior citizens with a greater feeling of security and protection in time of need.

It will work this way: If a letter carrier spots early symptoms of trouble such as mailbox overflow, porch light burning all day or broken windows, the carrier will jot down the information on a card. When he completes his route, he will tell his supervisor of the incident. The supervisor in turn will notify the Senior Information and Referral office who will call the senior citizen. If there is no answer, this office will contact the people who have been authorized to enter the home.

Any senior citizen, 60 or older, in this county is eligible. To register, fill out the postcard with your name, address, telephone number and affix a stamp. Under the words "Contact People," print the name of two people, including their addresses and telephone numbers. They should be trustworthy and have a key to your home.

Packets containing the post card, a white SIR telephone number sticker for the telephone and a "Postal Alert" sticker for the mailbox have been mailed to senior citizens in San Bernardino County.

The "Postal Alert" sticker is to be placed on the inside lid of the mailbox or some other place visible to the postman. You must mail the postcard to be registered.

Transportation

A Get-About service has been initiated for travel within and between the cities of Pomona, La Verne, San Dimas and Claremont by the Claremont Senior Service Center, Information and Referral Division.

Both senior citizens and handicapped persons are eligible for this service. The rider calls in to the Get-About office and orders a ride at a specific day and time. A van comes to the rider's door and takes him/her to a destination. A volunteer escort service also is available.

This service is available for a 50 cents donation per ride, but the rider must have a Get-About card. Apply at the Claremont Senior Service Center, Information and Referral Division, 10th and Yale in Claremont.

The Southern California Rapid Transit Division also will allow anyone over 62 to ride at a reduced rate on any of the RTD buses.

Senior citizens can apply for this card at the same location mentioned above.

Colony Park

The regular meeting and potluck luncheon of the Colony Park Senior Citizens Club will be held on July 24 at Colony Park, beginning with a meeting at 11:30 a.m., followed by lunch at noon. Dancing will follow from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

The club's fifth-year birthday luncheon held recently at the Magic Lamp Inn in Cucamonga was a big success with almost 100 attending.

This group also holds dances every Tuesday from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Colony Park Recreation Center.

Montclair

The Montclair Senior Citizens Club will meet Tuesday, July 24, for a business meeting, potluck and bingo from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 5111 Benito in Montclair.

The Rancho Cucamonga VIP Club meets every Thursday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 9797 Arrow Hwy., Rancho Cucamonga.

On Sunday, July 22, the club will hold a dance from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Neighborhood Facility.

This group's also bowls every Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Thunderbird Lanes in Ontario. For more information, call 989-1851, extension 52.

Health screening is offered on the third Thursday of the month between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Art Festival

Reservations are being taken for a senior citizen bus trip to the Festival of Arts of Laguna Beach. The trip is being sponsored by the Claremont Senior Service Center.

Just fifteen years ago, a child with leukemia could expect to live only months.

But, thanks to research, things have changed.

Children who once lived months are now living years. Many of them are growing up. Some are already adults, living normal lives.

Did you ever wonder what the American Cancer Society did with the money you gave us? Well, some of it went to leukemia research. And, if we had more, we could do more.

Give to the American Cancer Society.

From now on, we're giving you .25% more interest on your passbook account — a full 5.50% compounded daily for a yield of 5.65%!

Of course, we're still giving you everything that's wonderful about a passbook account. It's so easy. Withdraw when you want. No penalties, no hassle. Deposit whatever you want whenever you want. No minimums, no terms. Just a lot of nice interest that just got better.

Come on in and get yourself a raise. And while you're at it, ask about the other new benefits we're offering.

A brand new money market certificate.

It's our 4-Year Treasury Account. Our July rate is 7.85% (with an 8.17% yield). And the minimum balance is whatever you'd like it to be.

The Gold Card.

A California exclusive. We're offering an honest-to-goodness benefit to savers who qualify for the American Express Gold Card. We call it the 1% advantage. Come in and find out how good it really is!

No minimum balances.

From now on, you can get any certificate account you'd like by saving any amount you'd like. (Exception: the $10,000 minimum 6-month T-Bill Plus account.)

Welcome to the FINANCIAL FEDERATION family.

New Broadway series to open

Cab Calloway, starring in "Bubbling Brown Sugar," will open the 1979-80 Broadway series at The Claremont Colleges Center For The Performing Arts on Sept. 12 and 13 in Bridges Auditorium.

This event is the first in a new series for Claremont; remaining events being two Los Angeles area premieres of major works, a second musical presentation, a Neil Simon comedy and the thriller-chiller, "Deathtrap."

Premiering in Los Angeles, "Miss Margarida's Way," written by the 28-year-old Brazilian Roberto Athaide (recipient of the Moliere Prize), and starring Estelle Parsons, will run Nov. 1 and 2. This award winning one-woman play has been performed in 55 productions worldwide in addition to its successful run in New York.

Miss Margarida — a woman of blistering paranoia and sexual frustration — soon reveals herself to be a monstrously inept schoolteacher. Tyrannical, flaunting her power, she flays and cajoles her eight grade class (played by the audience), depicting one of the most fascinating characters the theatre has ever seen.

Another Los Angeles premiere will feature Richard Basehart starring in a new play by Ladislav Frago (author of "Patton") entitled, "Dammit Ike, I Was There," which will play Nov. 17 and 18. Directed by Charles Nelson Reilly, the play reveals the story of General George S. Patton Jr.'s last five days of military command. Upon hearing of his dismissal, Patton reflects, schemes, rages and then reminisces. The whole gamut of Patton's career lives again... from the young cavalry officer chasing Pancho Villa in Mexico to the decorated conqueror of World War II.

Musicals open and close the Claremont Broadway series. The extravaganza, "Bubbling Brown Sugar," starring Cab Calloway will run on Sept. 12 and 13. "Sugar" is a musical revue which celebrates some of the most famous people, places and night spots of Harlem from 1910-1940. The show has music and lyrics by such greats as Eubie Blake, Duke Ellington, Billie Holiday, Andy Razaf, Cab Calloway, Earl "Fatha" Hines, W.C. Handy, Noble Sissle, Thomas "Fats" Waller, Alexander Roberts, Bert Williams and others.

Harry Belafonte, noted folk singer, will conclude the series with an evening of age-old stories and music of the minstrels, troubadors and story tellers from around the world, when he brings his company to Bridges Auditorium on April 22.

Additional dramatic presentations include "Deathtrap" and "Chapter Two."

All performances of the Broadway series will be held in the 2,500-seat Bridges Auditorium or the 700-seat Garrison Theater, both located on the campus of The Claremont Colleges. Call 621-8032 for ticket and brochure information.

TAVARES singing group will sing at Six Flags Magic Mountain in Valencia July 24 to 26. The group will appear in the Showcase Theater. In addition to TAVARES, the amusement park features two live musical revues, "Under the Big Top" and "Country Gold Jamboree." The park is open daily until midnight.

'Piano Plus' a keyboard adventure

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

An "adventure of keyboards" best describes the new Grand Prix Record release by Jack Crossan of South Pasadena, formerly of Montclair.

A piano virtuoso, Crossan's record incorporates the piano, clavichord, harpsichord, electronic and celeste into a maize of exciting and soulful sounds.

Called "Piano Plus," the first side features selections recorded during live performances at the Wilshire-Ebell Theater, Los Angeles, Redlands Bowl and in a broadcast by Pacifica Radio Network.

The works he has recorded with the multi-sounds include composers Bach, Kohls, Schubert and Von Weber, all done in live performances. The flip side, more full of adventure and brilliant sounds, features Crossan's Concertino for Multiple Keyboard Instruments, a Dale Barnhart number, a flighty original called "Prismatic Rag" and Bach's marvelous, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," adapted for clavichord and celeste.

On this record, Crossan demonstrates his artistry as a performer. He has an enthusiastic approach to the keyboards, giving a masterful blend to each selection.

Even though the flip side is called "338 Keys-10 hands," most of the time, one feels there must be at least 40 fingers bringing forth the dramatic sounds.

Side one of the record, though recorded in live performances, has an amazing clarity and lack of background sound. This side is more conventional with only one keyboard being played. After hearing the flip side, it is mundane, though executed with depth. The Von Weber Perpetual Motion is quite dazzling and pretty much sets the pace for what is to come next.

Crossan has a perceptive feeling for the keyboard instruments he plays. There's an authoritative result when this pianist places his 10 fingers at the piano keyboard, or if he is manipulating multiple keyboards.

The former Montclair man has played numerous concerts at Chaffey College's Little Theater and was a featured artist in Gardiner Spring Auditorium, Ontario, with the Community Concert series.

Crossan performed publicly before he was 10 years old, and soloed with a symphony orchestra at 14.

At 18, he studied at USC. He concentrated extensively with Columbia's Community Concerts, toured as accompanist for John Charles Thomas (renowned baritone) and has made numerous recordings.

Piano enthusiasts will find Crossan's "Piano Plus" ranges from dazzling sounds to plaintive and delicate notes.

In Fontana, citrus growers banded together in 1923 to form the Fontana Citrus Association, which shipped prize oranges to Eastern markets under the label, "Fontana Girl."

Colorful citrus crate labels displayed

By Ila Wales
Staff Writer

In the early 1900s, Easterners discovered the delights of Southern California citrus fruits. Private growers and growers' associations proudly advertised their products with brightly colored labels for the wooden crates which carried oranges, lemons and grapefruit to the Eastern markets.

Those labels have since become prized collectors items and the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum, 525 W. 18th St., Upland, has acquired an extensive collection. The museum, which also includes Indian artifacts and displays of historical interest, is open from 1 to 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Admission is free.

Artists from San Bernardino County are invited to display their works in the fine arts exhibition of the Farmers Fair of Riverside County in Hemet, Aug. 14-18.

There are exhibit divisions for original oils, with classes covering landscapes, seascapes, still life, abstracts and all other oils; original watercolors of any subject; original acrylics of any subject; and an original miscellaneous division covering collage, etching, block prints, other printmaking and other acceptable art media.

The premium list book and entry forms can be obtained at the fairgrounds administrative office at Florida and Palm avenues in Hemet or by writing to Farmers Fair, P.O. Box 398, Hemet, CA 92343. Entries close July 31.

Works by a gallery of internationally known artists are on exhibit at the Cal State, San Bernardino Art Gallery, 5500 State College Parkway, San Bernardino.

The summer show, "Contemporary Directions in Painting, Prints, Drawings and Photography," will be open through July and for the first three weeks in September. The gallery is closed in August. Gallery hours are from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum at 525 W. 18th St., Upland, is seeking donations of antiques, furniture, silver, collectibles, useable items and paintings for a fund-raising public auction scheduled Sept. 9.

Scott Elliott, 11, of Upland, a visitor to the Chaffey Communities Cultural Center Museum, 525 W. 18th St., Upland, compares two labels, one on wood, the other on paper, used to carry "Upland Pride" oranges to Eastern consumers. (Staff photos by H. Lorren Au Jr.)

New Neil Simon play premieres during Mark Taper 13th season

Five new plays (two world premieres and three West Coast premieres) have been selected by artistic director Gordon Davidson for the Mark Taper Forum's 13th season. Neil Simon's "I Oughta be in Pictures" (world premiere) is a highlight of a season that has everything from an Irish parable to farce, from Tolstoy to unabashed romance.

Written especially for the Taper's intimacy, Simon's play is a drama (but not without that wonderful Neil Simon sense of humor) about the reunion of a father and daughter after 18 years of separation. Directed by Jack O'Brien, it is the third production of the season, playing from Jan. 17 through March 2, 1980.

A distinctive feature of the first, second and fourth productions of the season is that these works originated in other non-profit theaters and will be further developed at the Taper.

The season opener, "Talley's Folly" by Lanford Wilson, was first presented this spring at the Circle Repertory in New York. In its West Coast premiere here, Aug. 23 through Oct. 7, Marshall Mason will again direct, and Judd Hirsch and Trish Hawkins will re-create their roles in this tender, funny story of the courtship of a Midwestern woman during World War II.

Wilson has written "Talley's Folly" as part of a play cycle which includes "The Fifth of July," "Strider: The Story of a Horse" (West Coast premiere), the season's second production playing from Oct. 25 through Dec. 9, 1979, is an adaptation of a Tolstoy story by Russian playwright Mark Rozovsky (English stage version by Chelsea's Artistic Director Robert Kalin and Steve Brown). It is the story of a inferior because of a spotted coat. His tale (which is also an allegory of life) is told with music, mime, dance, acting and story theater techniques.

Following "I Oughta be in Pictures," the West Coast premiere of "Says I, Says He" by Ron Hutchinson will run from March 20 through May 4, 1980. A parable of Northern Ireland which was first presented at The Phoenix Theatre in New York this past February, it is a play of high theatrical energy, sharp wit and swag.

The fifth and final production of the season will be the world premiere of "Division Street" by Steve Tesich. The author of "Baba Goya," among others, has written a wild, hilarious romp around Chicago's Division Street. Mixed up with this mile-a-minute farce of multiple identities and slamming doors is a somewhat gentle and thoughtful perspective of the impassioned 60s.

Tickets for all of these productions are available only through the purchase of a season subscription, assuring the Taper subscriber the same choice seat locations for each play and renewable each year, and a discount up to 18% off the regular box office price for individual productions.

Subscriptions can be ordered by phone and charged to major credit cards by phoning CTG TeleTix at (213) 972-7654. To receive a 13th season brochure or for further information (including special student subscriptions and group rates), call (213) 972-7372.

Mummers cast show

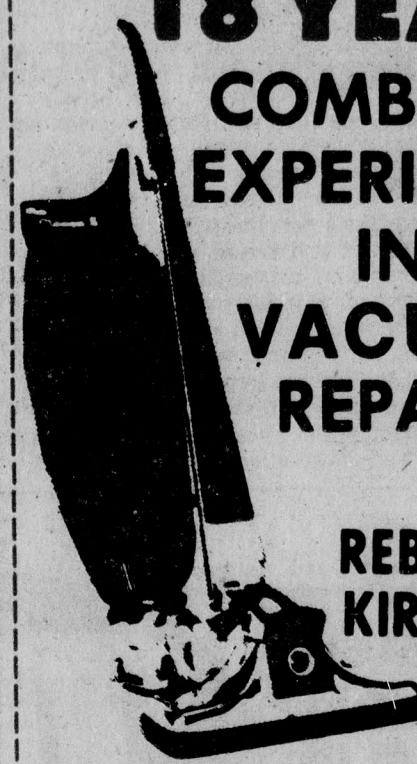

"You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," the Fontana Mummers' first production for the 1979-80 season, has been cast. The show is based upon the popular comic strip "Peanuts" by Charles Schultz.

Charlie Brown, Schroeder, Lucy, Patti, Snoopy and Linus, the featured characters in the musical, will be played respectively by Mike McEachern, Christopher Parmenter, Christina Carroll, Kelly McLemore, Ted Peugh and Jim Hippenstiel.

Opening night is scheduled for Thursday, July 26, with an 8:30 p.m. curtain.

Programs can be devised for them

Exercise can help the disabled

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

Many disabled people cannot jog, but they can get their exercise kicks anyway.

Dr. Howard F. Hunt, chairman of University of California San Diego's physical education department, says he is convinced there is almost no kind of physical disability for which an exercise program cannot be devised.

"Even people who are bedridden," Hunt said in an interview. "An arm crank can be put up over the bed. If they can't move their arms, maybe they can use their legs to turn a crank. But the main thing is, the cardiovascular system will deteriorate unless it is used."

Hunt has developed what it is believed to be the first protocol for stress-testing persons who do not have use of their legs.

The Veterans Administration Hospital and the YMCA asked him to develop one for a group of 40 wheelchair veterans.

Hunt simply put a stationary bicycle on a table, hooked the person to the same cardiovascular monitoring apparatus used for able-bodied persons and had them turn the bike pedals with their hands.

"Because many persons in wheelchairs get more exercise than the average person," Hunt said, "we found fewer coronary problems with the group than with the general population."

Only two of the 40 were found to have heart problems.

Hunt wrote exercise prescriptions for each of them. Most were put into swimming programs, ideal for paraplegics. Some, who had a little feeling in their legs, were told to get on the floor and crawl for exercise.

Back and forth they crawl, progressing gradually to 30-minute workouts. Others were put on the hand-cranked bicycles, sitting in back of the bikes and exercising their arms as others do their legs.

"The heart doesn't know the difference whether the person is running or what. All it knows is that when you exercise it needs more oxygen."

All of the paraplegics were encouraged to treat their wheelchairs as exercise devices and use them in regular sidewalk workouts.

Some of Hunt's wheelchair students entered a recent half-marathon and finished ahead of a lot of joggers.

"It is great to see these people who haven't had a fair shake for so darned long finally get a chance to participate," Hunt said.

After a year of exercise the disabled persons were stress-tested again and the results, according to Hunt, "were fantastic."

"Their blood pressures dropped, just like those of anyone who exercises regularly and sufficiently. Their percentage of body fat decreased, their resting heart rates dropped and their triglycerides dropped."

Hunt said the controlling factor in exercises for paraplegics at first is seeing that they do not get too fatigued.

"But as they develop their vascular proficiency and ability to use oxygen, they become stronger and experience less fatigue."

Many disabled persons are responding to the same concern over their health and general well-being that is sweeping the rest of the population.

Some want to live their normal life-span and feel as good as they can while doing it. Some want the same exercise fun they see their able-bodied friends having.

But many have felt they couldn't exercise at all because of their physical limitations.

Keith Adair, 32, lost both of his legs above the knees in a farming accident.

"I'm bound to a wheelchair," he said, "and I am well-developed in my upper body but I don't get as much exercise in my wheelchair as the average person does walking around the house."

Hunt and Dave Briggs, recreation therapist at UCSD, have got Adair into gym workouts and swimming with emphasis on stretching a body Briggs said is in danger of becoming muscle-bound.

Bill Stothers, 38, a victim of polio in 1950, depends on a motorized wheelchair for getting around and has been concerned that the exercise he gets from pushing the button to make it go is not enough.

Stothers, a journalist, after taking a stress-test is embarked on a program of pedaling a stationary bike with his hands regularly.

Hunt asks his exercisers to work out for at least four days a week. "I don't like to see anybody miss two days in a row," he said. "There is a tendency to lose some of the benefits from the previous workout if you wait two days."

Assisting with the opening activities at the new Nutrition Center for senior citizens at Blaisdell Park, Claremont, are, from the left, Tony Bauerlein, Maria

At Hill of Hope

Plans for new school delayed

The Society of St. John Vianney which wants to build a private high school for Catholic boys at the Hill of Hope in Carbon Canyon has been given another delay.

San Bernardino County's Environmental Review Board ruled this week the impact report which the society prepared four years ago is too obsolete. The board stated the society must revise its plans if it wants to proceed with the project.

The ruling came on an appeal from an earlier decision by Chet Davison, staff director of the county board. He said the old report was too difficult to work with and did not conform to present county standards.

The society must now select one of three environmental consultants approved by the county to prepare the necessary modifications.

But even if the society's impact report is accepted, it must face some serious objections from the county planning department. County planners want to know what else will be built on the 460-acre Hill of Hope site, located just outside the eastern boundary line of Orange County.

Spokesmen for the society reported the high school which will educate 300 boys, the administrative building next to it, a large dormitory, and a chapel will be built in three phases during the next seven years.

Future projects include a basilica, a convent, a hospital, museum, amphitheater, pilgrim village and a home for senior citizens.

Victims of drug experimentation sought

Members of American Citizens for Honesty in Government, sponsored by the Church of Scientology, are touring cities in Southern California looking for victims of human drug experimentation at the Army's Edgewood Arsenal during the 1960's and into the 70's.

Through Freedom of Information Acts, ACHG found documents that the U.S. Army had developed a weapon system capable of delivering "lethal and incapacitating" chemicals including an hallucinogenic 10 times more powerful than LSD called BZ. BZ was developed during a program of human experimentation at the Army's Edgewood Arsenal.

ACHG launched a National Campaign to find the victims of this human experimentation program to offer them free medical examinations, to help determine the long range effect of the testing.

ACHG spokesperson Dave Wilson pointed out that not one official has been indicted for the human experimentation program extending over the past 30 years. Wilson hit the discriminatory non-prosecution of federal officials saying that, "Documentations now exists that should lead to indictments of many officials for crimes no different than those for which Nazis were hung at Nuremberg."

Several victims of the Edgewood Arsenal experiments have responded to ACHG newspaper advertisements.

ACHG urges anyone who was a part of the Edgewood program to contact ACHG at (213) 660-5522.

Declining dollar

Should the Consumer Price Index rise by 8 percent this year as presumed, $1 in 1979 will only purchase 55 percent of what it purchased in 1970. The dollar in 1979 would only purchase 42 percent of what a dollar would buy in 1960.

Americans and cars remain inseparable

America's love affair with the automobile and the internal combustion engine shows no signs of waning, despite gasoline shortages and increased prices, according to a Harvey Mudd College professor who has written extensively on the auto industry and the influence of the automobile on the American lifestyle.

John B. Rae sees no alternative to the automobile and the gasoline engine for at least 20 to 25 years. And Americans, he feels, will be reluctant to go to public transportation, even if it were available.

"If two percent of the auto commuters went to public transportation, they would swamp it," Rae said. And to develop a mass transit system for Southern California would take 20 years if construction started today, Rae contends. This is because construction would include not only the system, but a network of electrical power generating stations to operate it.

"Our power generating facilities are operating at peak now," Rae said. "And many of those who propose a large transit system fail to realize that new, massive generating facilities must be built to operate it."

Given that the automobile will remain the basic system of transportation, Rae sees no immediate changes from the internal combustion engine. "Both the steam and the turbine engines have been sent back to the drawing boards," Rae commented, "and the battery offers no imminent solution either."

"We need to develop a battery that can go long distances (the range of a tank of gas) at high speeds and be charged quickly."

He views research in this area as "a long-term and expensive project."

"It is nice to say that in the 21st century, we will have great, new sources of energy," he said. "But we have to get there first. Solar offers a lot of possibilities for home water heating, but we are a long way from getting it to operate an automobile, run a train or fly a 747."

What changes can the nation expect?

"Higher oil prices and shorter supplies will push people toward economical smaller cars," Rae said. The push to smaller cars, over a 10-year period, he feels, will replace high-consumption cars and could double gas mileage. This would essentially double the nation's gasoline supply.

Rae, who is working on a history of a major American oil company, believes the gas shortage is real. "I am appalled," he said, "by the number of people who think this is a put-up job by the oil companies. They fail to realize that the oil companies have been warning us about this for 10 years."

Oil is in shorter supply because Americans are using more than the amount being found each year. And its cost is higher because the oil itself costs more to find.

"If we find more oil, it is going to be more expensive because it will be in remote places and will cost more to get," Rae said.

"The Alaskan field (which Rae toured last summer) is big, but not that big," he said, noting that most experts predict it will be a former chairman of the provide oil for the next 20 to 25 years.

And Mexican oil offers no easy solution in his view.

"There is no indication that the Mexican government will pour a lot of cheap oil on the market since it would hurt their own economy and stability."

In the last 20 years, the demand for oil has risen faster than new supplies could be found. "Even if the Mideast comes back to normal, and I don't think it will, and even with the Alaskan field, we will have a shortage."

Ways to get more oil include shale and even the conversion of oil from coal. "But we are going to have to pay for it at the gas pumps or pay for it in new taxes. You can count on it," Rae said.

Dr. Rae, known as "the dean of automotive historians," is a senior professor emeritus at Harvey Mudd, the engineering and science campus of The Claremont Colleges. He college department of humanities and social sciences.

He has written extensively on the development of American industry and technology, specializing in several of his works on the influence of the car on American life. A partial listing of his books includes The Road and The Car in American Life, Climb to Greatness, Henry Ford, and The American Automobile.

There's always something to do in Cub Scouting.

Board member named by Claremont district

Dr. James Monson, a Harvey Mudd College professor, has been appointed by Claremont school trustees to fill the unexpired term of trustee Joseph Hough who resigned Monday.

Monson served on the board from 1966 to 1971. He was board president in 1969-70.

Trustees earlier had indicated they wanted to appoint an individual with previous school board experience. The term will expire in November.

Monson said Tuesday night he viewed the appointment as interim and that he had no plans for staying on the board.

"That was one of the conditions of the appointment," he said. "I'm looking forward to serving the district and hope to do my best to help meet the current educational challenges."

Monson said that though times change, the problems of school boards don't seem to go away.

He will take office after returning from a business trip to England in August, he said.

Claremont may get new pool law

Claremont may have its first comprehensive swimming pool ordinance in effect by mid-August.

The new ordinance will be placed on second reading at the Tuesday meeting of the Claremont City Council. If approved, it would become effective in 30 days.

Many regulations related to the construction of residential pools, including fencing, have previously been covered in the city's municipal codes.

According to Bill Wojtkowski, director of community development, the ordinance is the first highly-detailed compiled ordinance which covers swimming pools and spas.

"Copies have been distributed to many pool contractors and they appear pleased with the proposed ordinance," Wojtkowski added. "It clearly spells out the guidelines for contractors and owners."

The ordinance would control specific set-back requirements from property lines and existing structures. The ordinance also requires adherence to the city's cross-lot drainage policy.

Wojtkowski said the ordinance will prevent the construction of pools in unsafe areas. It also establishes uniform permit fees.

No pool or spa may be constructed in the city without a permit, with the exception of a pool which is entirely above the ground and which involves neither plumbing nor electrical wiring.

All pools must be fenced with self-closing and self-latching gates with latches at least four feet, six inches from the ground.

The ordinance also requires all reservoirs and pits within the city to be fenced.

Games: new player in stroke therapy

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

Therapy is fun and rewarding when it's turned into a game.

This is the concept of the new Theater Games program recently introduced by therapists to members of the Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization, Inc.

"Improvised games are fun and good therapy. There is an inherent joy in playing without competition," explained Sheila Goldman, a therapist from Casa Colina Hospital at the annual OASR picnic recently at Frank G. Bonelli Regional Park in San Dimas.

Bob Martin, a therapist with the Spolin Theater Games Center in Hollywood, joined Miss Goldman in teaching the games to members and their families at the outing.

"We start with games everyone knows such as Red Light, Green Light and Simon Says," added Martin. "Soon people are relaxed and laughing. Then they start using muscles without conscious effort."

Once traditional games are used as a warm-up, special games which stress memory, word formation or easy exercises are introduced.

Dr. Jessica Haskell, secretary of the OASR board of directors, said the program is now being introduced at the four activity centers in the valley operated by the association.

Therapists have been teaching volunteers at each center to direct the games.

"Once the people who are handicapped start getting out of themselves, they do things which they didn't realize they were able to perform," reported Mrs. Haskell. "It's exciting to see them reach beyond their previous limits."

Marian Lett, also a volunteer board member, added that participants frequently expand their vocabulary during the games therapy.

"A word which has been blocked by a person who has had a stroke will suddenly be said during a game, much to the delight of us all," added Mrs. Lett.

OASR operates centers in Glendora, Pomona, Ontario and La Puente.

The Pomona center is at Ganesha Park Recreation Center Mondays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Glendora center is at Legion Memorial Park Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In Ontario, the program is operated at DeAnza Park on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The newest center serves Rowland Heights and La Puente and is at the La Puente Gardens, Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The organization is directed by a volunteer board and funded through several sources, both private and agencies.

The program is geared for the post-stroke individual to assist the person in resuming a viable place in society. The centers offer the participants a chance to share, in a social setting, triumphs and failures. Mrs. Lett explained.

The Theater Games program is the latest in a number of activities which foster re-education with an emphasis on enjoyment.

Additional information on the centers may be obtained by calling the Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization office, 804 E. Foothill Blvd., Glendora, at (213) 335-0712.

Members of the Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization learn to play Theater Games during a therapy program held at the annual OASR picnic at Bonelli Regional Park.

College's gifts in excess of $1.5 million

Scripps College, Claremont, has received more than $1.5 million in gifts to the college during a four-week period including the grant of $1 million announced recently by the Harry G. Steele Foundation.

This marks a record total of gifts received for any comparable period in the history of fund raising at Scripps.

In addition to the $1 million, the gifts include:

— $275,000 from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation paid to Scripps as the fiscal agent of four of The Claremont Colleges. The grant will lead toward expansion of joint academic efforts over the next three to four years by the "cooperative professional development of faculty members, curricular development, and development of new forms and structures for teaching and learning."

The award is a farsighted endorsement of the independent yet cooperative nature of the Claremont group.

— $75,000 from the James Irvine Foundation of California "toward costs of renovating (the college's) Balch Academic Hall."

Scripps President John H. Chandler said renewal and modification of the hall, which houses classrooms, the language laboratory for the Claremont Colleges, and faculty and administrative offices, and has been used continuously for 50 years, is "the number one priority of the college's Five-Year Renovation Plan."

— $50,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Donald P. Barrett of Berkeley to establish the Jeanne Jaquith Scholarship Fund, named in honor of Mrs. Barrett's sister who died in 1923 at age 18. Mrs. Barrett is a 1936 graduate of Scripps.

— And $25,000 from the Eleanor Ham Trust (Boston, Mass.) to establish in memory of this 1937 Scripps graduate the Eleanor Joslyn Ham Scholarship Fund for needy students.

Help lighten the electric load.

If you do the heavy housework in the morning, here's what you'll be doing. The baking. The dishwashing. The laundry. And the vacuuming.

But you'll be doing something else, too. Something that's very important. By giving your electric appliances the afternoon off, you'll be helping to lighten the load from noon to 6 p.m. That's when homes, stores, offices and factories turn on air conditioners to beat the afternoon heat.

Give your appliances the afternoon off. Then Edison can put off building expensive new power plants. And you'll help keep your electric bills down.

Group monitors calls for help

Valley CBers REACT to emergencies

By P. J. PORRELLI
Staff Writer

"Break channel nine for REACT."
"This is COMUPAC REACT, monitor KOX-6023, unit two. May I help you?"

As Mike O'Connor awaits additional information from the unidentified motorist who "broke" channel nine on a citizens band radio, the La Verne resident has to be ready for just about anything.

Someone may be near death and in need of immediate medical attention following a traffic accident or shooting; an airplane may have crashed; a brush fire may be threatening homes and property.

Or it may be something as simple as a lost motorist who needs directions or roadside service from the Auto Club.

This time there is no urgency. O'Connor relaxes a bit as the CBer describes a disabled vehicle towing a horse trailer on one of the valley freeways.

O'Connor takes the needed information and calls the appropriate agency. The unidentified motorist goes about his business and O'Connor listens for the next call.

This time it was simple. But O'Connor can never be sure.

REACT stands for Radio Emergency Associated Citizen's Teams, an international organization. COMUPAC is the local chapter and refers to the cities of Claremont, Ontario, Montclair, Upland, Pomona, Alta Loma, Chino and Cucamonga.

O'Connor is vice president of COMUPAC REACT. His wife, Cheryl, is editor and historian. Forty-nine other valley residents are members of the organization, which may not appeal to all CBers.

Missing is the jargon and slang generally attributed to CB. There is no time for idle chatter with friends. The idea of spending a minimum of two hours per week, sitting at home, doing little more than monitoring channel nine, isn't for everyone.

COMUPAC REACT, the O'Connors explain, isn't just another CB club. In fact, being a member almost seems like work.

The primary goal of COMUPAC REACT is to provide 24-hour monitoring of channel nine, nationally recognized by most CBers as the emergency channel, although there are abuses of the airways.

The O'Connors said they are seeking additional members and see 100 as ideal. They added the local chapter is very close to being able to provide the around-the-clock monitoring.

In addition, COMUPAC REACT has a mobile trailer that can be sent to the site of a disaster or emergency if requested. The trailer is self-sufficient.

Mrs. O'Connor said the organization "has an understanding with the National Red Cross" and works closely with most of the law enforcement agencies in the area.

"The more they work with us, the more they realize we are a professional organization," she added. Agencies are provided a list showing who is a member and how they may be reached.

The O'Connors, however, insist that unlike some CB clubs, they don't have members "jumping in their cars and rushing to a disaster or accident scene."

"We are not a search and rescue team. We do not go mobile," O'Connor said. In the event telephones or other communication systems are knocked out, members will respond with the trailer if asked by authorities.

During brush fire season, however, members of COMUPAC REACT have a valley residents attempt to provide 24-hour monitoring of citizens band radio channel 9, used for emergency calls.

"Red Flag" team that assists with fire patrol.

Members will call the base station if a small fire is spotted. And if someone is seen breaking the law, the member will take down the license number.

O'Connor said persons interested can set up a base station in the home for about $200. But to be a member of COMUPAC REACT, a CBer must be 18 years of age or older, have a current FCC "Class D" license, have a base station and be able to monitor the two-hour-a-week minimum.

Members are also required to attend a communication school. There is an annual dues of $10 and a $10 deposit for the materials provided to a member.

The O'Connors said the group is family oriented and that a junior division for young people, ages 12 through 17, has been set up. Except for the age requirements are the same and an adult must also be on monitor with a juvenile.

Two members of COMUPAC REACT are multiple sclerosis victims. Mrs. O'Connor said the chapter plans on coordinating a handicapped division that would work with the juveniles.

The O'Connors said they and other members must follow up on all REACT request calls, even when they appear to be an obvious hoax.

"We do not police channel nine. We have no right to," said O'Connor. "People are pretty good about it but some are too ignorant to know better."

"Channel nine is not REACT's channel, although some people think it is. It is an emergency channel."

Ironically, the O'Connors admit they really aren't big CB users. He said they went on the air about once a week. They got involved in COMUPAC REACT after some other people they knew did.

"We wanted to do something constructive," said Mrs. O'Connor.

The O'Connors said that the plain English approach is promoted, without the slang and codes that became so popular. "Everybody wanted to be able to talk to a trucker."

The COMUPAC REACT chapter keeps logs of all calls, which later are turned in to the main headquarters.

COMUPAC REACT meets every third Monday of the month at 7:30 p.m. at the Upland Lumber Co., 85 N. Euclid Ave.

Local rangers expect flood of visitors

Despite gas shortages, or perhaps because of it, San Bernardino County forest rangers are bracing for what they believe may be an onslaught of campers this summer in the San Bernardino mountains.

"We could be wrong," Elliott Graham of the U.S. Forest Service said, "but if I lived in the Los Angeles basin and I could get away from the mess downtown and it was less than a two-hour drive (to the San Bernardino mountains) instead of six (to northern recreation areas), I would go that distance."

For years, many campers, even those living in the San Bernardino Valley and within close proximity of campgrounds in the county's state and national parks, have opted for the lush and more water-oriented campgrounds in northern parts of the state.

But some park officials believe that trend is changing because of gasoline shortages. They believe that campers, rather than foregoing their vacations because of uncertainty over gasoline, will head for closer turf.

"It's kind of crystal-balling it, but it looks like that might be the case," Graham said.

People who decide on the closer campgrounds because of gas usage may be met, however, by another problem — lack of camping spaces and facilities — at least during prime summer months.

Most national campgrounds in the area require advance reservations and 90 days in advance is the soonest campsites may be reserved through Ticketron.

National campgrounds needing reservations in the East end of the county are Dog Wood, Green Valley and North Shore in Arrowhead; Hanna Flats in Big Bear; Barton Flats and Hartbar in San Geronio.

West End campgrounds needing reservations through Ticketron are Applewhite, Big Horn and Cajon campgrounds.

Camping with reservations is limited to 14 days.

Graham said for several years most of the area campgrounds have been full to capacity on weekends, with some space available during the week. So campers aren't going to have an easy time finding spaces.

Ironically though, Graham said daytime camping or picnicking is down in mountain recreation areas, even though he said many gas stations there are staying open weekends.

Mountain area gas stations are subject to the odd-even allocation plan.

Desert areas in the county, location of many campgrounds, are not subject to the allocation plan.

James Davis, chief ranger with the State Department of Parks and Recreation, in charge of the Silverwood Lake State Recreation area in the San Bernardino mountains, said that area "goes to full capacity now. When more people attempt to get in we just won't be able to accommodate them."

He said lineups, even for day use are very common, especially during the summer.

The area offers 90 campsites, plus three group camp grounds and 470 picnic sites.

The area is capable of handling 175 vehicles with boats and trailers geared for fishing at Silverwood Lake.

With the exception of overnight camping, day use is limited from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. from Oct. 1 to April 30, and open from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m. from May 1 to Sept. 30.

Reservations for campsites through Ticketron must be made no later than the preceding Saturday by 5 p.m. for the reservation week which begins each Friday at 2 p.m.

Reservations aren't required at Silverwood, but Davis said that without one, "campers will have a hard time getting in." Boaters with gasoline, said Wednesday that gas was still available there "but we don't know for how long."

Auxiliaries help CHS to serve children

By LINDA BERGSTEDT
Panorama Editor

"What the best and wisest parent wants for his own child that must the community want for all its children." — John Dewey

The philosophy contained in the above quote could be the byword of the Children's Home Society of California, which provides a multitude of services to children throughout the state in an effort to secure the rights of those children.

More than 5,000 children are served each year by the society, which provides foster family, group home and day care, plus parent-child counseling, pregnancy counseling and adoptive services.

All of these efforts on behalf of California's children cost money. And that's where local support groups like the Casa Alegre Auxiliary in the West End and the Claremont Auxiliary come in.

By combining forces this spring, the two auxiliaries sponsored Showcase House 1979, when the Harwood home in Upland was opened for public tours for two weeks. Rooms in the home were redecorated by local interior designers to reflect the era when the home was built in 1890. About 2,500 people toured the home.

Now the ticket sales have been counted, expenses deducted and over $8,000 has been given to the Children's Home Society to further its endeavors in the welfare of children.

CHS, founded in 1891, is a non-profit, voluntary agency serving children and families in every county in the state.

The society concentrates its efforts in six areas of child welfare services recognized by the Child Welfare League of America.

These services include adoption, unmarried parents services, foster family care services, parent-child counseling, day care, group home, child advocacy and public education.

Beside working in auxiliary activities such as fund-raising, CHS volunteers can participate in many phases of work including clerical, clinic work, providing transportation and mending, sorting and caring for clothing given to the society. They also make hospital layettes and other baby clothing, gather up used clothing and hold "baby showers."

A unique aspect of the CHS volunteer program in recent years has been the participation of trained volunteer film discussion leaders. These volunteers are an adjunct to the use of CHS public education films by schools and organizations.

In the Riverside-San Bernardino District, two films — "I'm Pregnant and Don't Know What to Do" and "Growing Up Together" — were shown in 1977-78 fiscal year a total of 165 times to a total audience of 4,430 viewers.

A third film, "Teen-Age Father," introduced last November, has been shown in local schools with local volunteers acting as discussion leaders for the rap sessions following the film's viewing. This film also won an Academy Award this year for best live-action short film.

The need for volunteers in this organization is unending as the needs of today's children increase.

The "International Year of the Child" might be an appropriate time to devote some time to helping the Children's Home Society and its local auxiliary. There are many categories of membership, both working and supportive, as well as the various categories of direct volunteer service.

Women in Upland, Ontario, Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Chino interested in joining Casa Alegre Auxiliary should call Catherine Hancock, president, at 982-4234 or Bertie Sprague, membership chairman, at 985-7302.

Society offers services

Seven major services are available through the Riverside-San Bernardino District of the Children's Home Society of California, a statewide, voluntarily supported, non-sectarian agency. The local office is located at 4353 Main St. in Riverside, and the telephone number is 686-7603.

intervention; individual, group and family counseling; and counseling to adoptive, biological and foster families. Focus presently is on unwed mothers with small children, but counseling also includes individual and group counseling, financial, medical, day care and housing assistance.

1 — Pregnancy counseling covers examination of alternative planning and on-going individual and group counseling. This includes services to all family members, services to the alleged biological father, referral to CHS's foster homes program, conducting groups in pregnant minor programs and referral to other appropriate community services.

5 — Group home, also known as the Coachella Valley Project, is a crisis resolution group home for up to six unrelated children. Short term help is for runaways, truants and youths out of parental control. The intent is to help youth and families and keep the young people out of the juvenile justice system.

2 — Adoptive services are information meetings, family studies, placement and supervision of all types of children including special needs (older, siblings, mixed racial, emotionally or physically handicapped) and parent education groups.

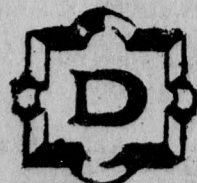

6 — Under the developmentally disabled program, the Children's Home Society has a case management of between 50 and 60 families with handicapped children. Families are assisted in finding resources, working with schools and dealing with the possible difficulties within the family.

3 — Family foster care includes recruiting, screening, orienting, training and supervising 20 to 25 foster homes; with services primarily to infants, pregnant teen-agers and single teen parents. Emphasis is on short-term care.

7 — The group home for the young single parent has facilities for six young single parents and their infants. A structured environment is offered with a focus on having these young women become socially, psychologically and economically independent as well as improving their parenting skills.

4 — Parent-child counseling services offered are crisis

Postal official outlines service's new programs

Summer is a difficult time for letter carriers — what with smoggy heat, unrestrained dogs and services no one seems to know about.

"The post office has not been effective about getting the word out about our services... and about our problems," Montclair Postmaster John Blum said.

There are many services available at all area post office locations, Blum said, especially at main branch offices in Ontario and Pomona.

The new express mail program guarantees overnight service from one location to another in the United States or the money paid to the post office is refunded.

If express mail is sent out before 5 p.m., it can usually reach another post office by 10 a.m. the following day, or a business location by 3 p.m.

"Stamps by mail" is a new program designed so that senior citizens, the handicapped and employees of small businesses without postage meters can get stamps without waiting in line.

Stamps by mail may be obtained by putting a note in an envelope saying how many stamps are needed, including the appropriate amount of money plus a 40-cent handling charge, and setting out the envelope without a stamp along with regular mail.

If the envelope has been properly addressed "postmaster," and a return address is included, stamps can be delivered by the letter carrier usually the next day.

"For some businesses it's cheaper to pay the 40-cent handling charge than have an employee wait in line at the post office," Blum said.

"Certificate of mailing" is an apparently unknown service that in many cases effectively replaces the need to certify or register a letter, and is substantially less expensive.

A certificate of mailing is a legal receipt used to prove that a letter was mailed at a certain time on a certain date. The cost is about 15 cents.

A letter should be certified if it must be shown that it was delivered and received on a certain date. The cost is about 80 cents.

A letter should be registered if it's a valuable or negotiable item, and money would be lost if the letter was not delivered safely. The minimum cost is $3.

Tax statements usually need only a certificate of mailing. Legal notices usually should be certified but rarely need to be registered. Usually only something like a stock certificate or an insurance bond should be registered, Blum said.

Food stamps are not issued by post offices, but those who qualify must pick them up at post offices.

Recipients usually get the authorization to purchase food stamps in the mail on the first day of the month, so the first few days of the month are busy at post offices.

"It's frustrating and inconvenient for many people to conduct business at the post office during this time, so they should try to schedule around the first of the month if they can," Blum said.

Since letter carriers usually come at a certain time each day to deliver mail, residents are urged to tie up dogs or remove them from front yards during that time.

Blum reminded that letter carriers will not make a routine stop at a home if they have no mail to deliver at that address.

If a letter to be mailed is set aside for a letter carrier, it won't be picked up until a letter carrier has something to deliver.

Letter carriers are only authorized to pick up and deliver mail. Stamps can't be bought, letters can't be weighed and wrapped packages can't be approved by letter carriers.

Residents should also try not to make a letter carrier wait while an additional letter is addressed or a package is wrapped, Blum said.

Pet dogs are a serious threat to letter carriers, especially during the summer months. With children are out of school and more apt to be playing with dogs, the animals feel very protective and sometimes consider a letter carrier a trespasser.

Passports can also be completed by postal workers as long as proper identification and photographs are brought along, Blum said.

Residents can help make the job of a letter carrier easier this summer by following a few simple suggestions, Blum said.

Pet dogs are a serious threat to letter carriers, especially during the summer months. With children are out of school and more apt to be playing with dogs, the animals feel very protective and sometimes consider a letter carrier a trespasser.

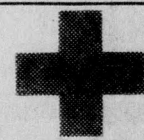

Hadassah chapter installs

The Sharon Chapter of Hadassah held its installation of new officers at the La Verne home of Mr. and Mrs. John Movich.

Mae Spector of Ontario invested the following: Ina Penner, president; Rita Wodinsky for fund raising, Marie Rebuhn for education and Debbie Frame and Barbara Abramovitz for membership; Sylvia Luginsky, for programs; Sonia Movich, treasurer; Rose Watkins, financial secretary; Sue Slomka, recording secretary; and Emma Dagan, corresponding secretary.

During the 1978-79 season, Sharon Chapter almost doubled its fund-raising quota to support the medical centers of Hadassah University Hospital in Jerusalem and the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School at Ein Karem.

Further information about Sharon Chapter and its work is available by calling 624-0102 and 982-5166.

Cal Poly gets grant for energy program

The Cal Poly Pomona mechanical engineering department has received $20,500 from the Getty Oil Company for academic development. The award provides $4,000 for scholarships, $1,500 in departmental funds and $15,000 for the development costs of the department's option in petroleum engineering.

"Because of the current shortage of young professionals in the fields of petroleum and earth sciences, mining and business, it is more important than ever that companies support schools with such programs," said Byron T. Johnson, Getty director of university relations.

According to Kenneth J. Schneider, professor and chairman of mechanical engineering, the Cal Poly petroleum option was initiated in response to the growing need for trained petroleum engineers.

Increased technology, says Schneider, is needed to develop the oil supplies that are not easily accessible for production purposes. The oil reserves in California are considerable but we need an increased number of trained persons to bring the oil to the surface.

Approximately 20 percent of the mechanical engineering graduates are going into some aspect of petroleum engineering, says Schneider. And, these mechanical engineering majors have need for some petroleum or geology background.

The mechanical engineering major is a natural for a petroleum engineering option because it has breadth and can be utilized in an enormous variety of functions within companies, Schneider added.

Cal Poly campus park built by design students

Nine thousand volunteer student hours and approximately 1,000 hours of volunteer faculty time have been spent on the construction of a one-acre park — the ENV Triangle — on the Cal Poly Pomona campus. The park will be used for study, continuing product testing and relaxation.

The one-acre area has been transformed from a vacant dirt lot into a park setting by 37 landscape architecture students under the direction of D. Rodney Tapp, professor of landscape architecture.

Converting the dirt lot to a park has come to more than $30,000 in materials alone, says Tapp. The estimated value of the completed park is $160,000, he adds.

Two thousand dollars of the cost of the park was allocated from the environmental design school funds. The remainder of the money and materials, says Tapp, was donated by professional landscapers, suppliers and manufacturers.

A special thanks for assistance, says Tapp, goes to Joseph J. Sampo, Cal Poly auto and equipment garage supervisor in agricultural engineering. Sampo did the land filling and grading required for the park project.

A multi-tiered fountain is the principal feature of the mini park and will serve as an instructional tool for testing and research. The

The ENV Triangle is landscaped with a variety of plant materials. More than 100 trees, 300 shrubs and 15,000 square feet of turf are planted there.

MARK III TRADE-IN PROGRAM

We have instituted a trade-in program that will enable you to move right into a Mark III Home without the uncertainty and delay of selling your present home first. Obviously, your home must qualify. See one of our salesmen for details.

These Mark III Homes are not as large as palaces and they are not priced like palaces either, but here and there they feel like palaces — in spaces that soar above you — in refined architectural detail — in bedroom suites that seem fit for a sultan, with separate sitting rooms and inside garden spas. Outside the homes are spacious too, with plenty of room for a large pool.

Virtually all of those luxury features that are usually "optional extras" are already included in the price — over $18,000 worth to be exact. If you've always wanted it, you can be almost certain Mark III has it.

Almost A Palace

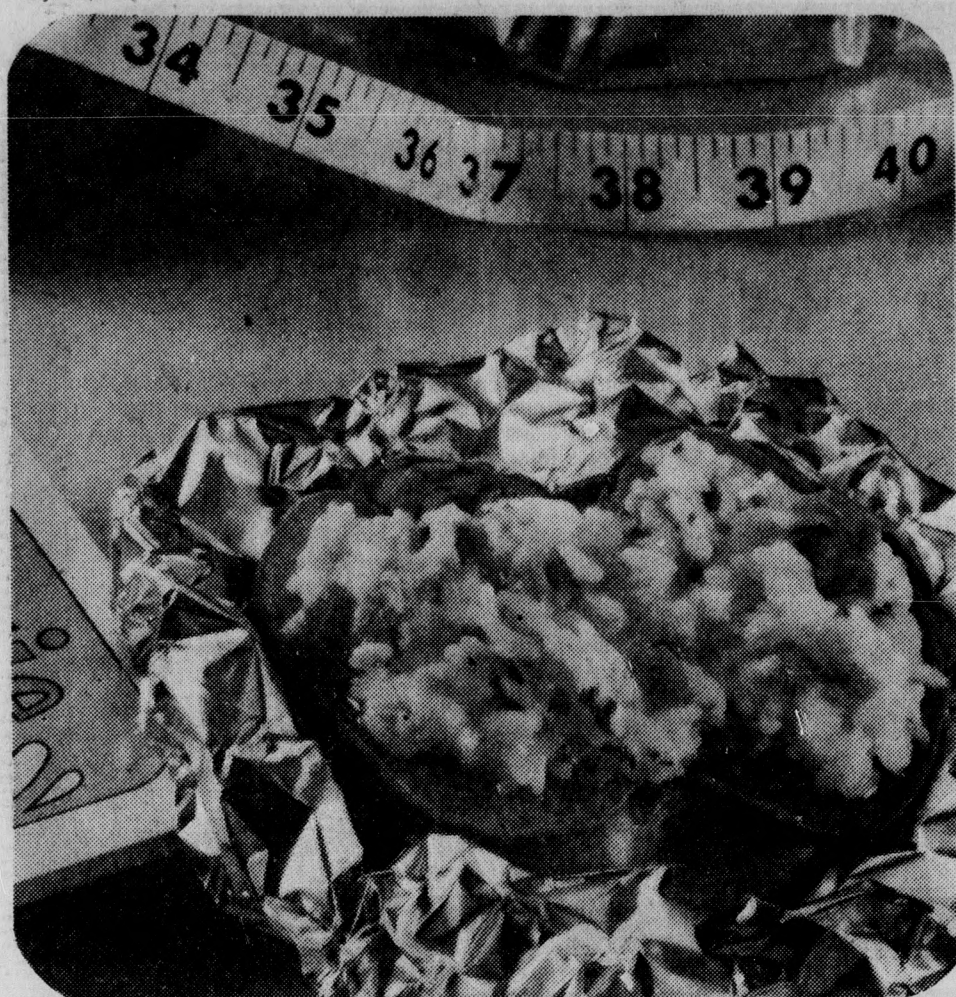

UPLAND

Homes of this quality are located in the kind of choice community you'd expect — Upland, with fine schools and shopping and an absolutely stunning background of majestic mountains — which inclose a 10,000-acre playground that is only 30 minutes away.

From $118,000 to $145,000

THE HALLMARK OF EXCELLENCE IN HOMES

Baked in aluminum foil bundles, vegetable combinations such as Bundle Stuffed Peppers can be prepared and then frozen until cooking time. This is a wonderful way to prepare those diet dishes ahead, or put away leftover meals or anything for the freezer. Makes for easy cleaning up, too.

Calorie plan

Green pepper halves get bundle treatment

If you've joined the calorie watching set, here's a flavorful vegetable combination that makes dieting almost a pleasure. It's colorful green pepper halves stuffed with a creamy rice combo.

The recipe given is for two servings, but it can be easily multiplied for bigger family fare. What is particularly appealing about Bundle Stuffed Peppers is the cooking method.

Wrap the stuffed peppers in heavy duty aluminum foil and cook right along with other items in the oven. Or prepare peppers ahead and freeze. The individual foil bundles can go directly into the oven with no last minute fuss and bother.

If you have bits of leftover meat, you can make these green pepper beauties into a full meal. Just add chopped ham, chicken, turkey or beef. A great meal in a bundle ... and easy cleanup, too.

Bundle Stuffed Peppers

1 teaspoon diet margarine
1 teaspoon flour
1/4 cup skim milk
1 cup cooked rice
1/4 cup finely chopped mushrooms
2 teaspoons chopped pimiento
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1/2 teaspoon parsley
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 medium green pepper, cut in half lengthwise, seeded Melt margarine in small saucepan over low heat. Blend in flour; stir in skim milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ingredients except green pepper. Fill pepper halves with rice mixture; place each pepper on a sheet of heavy duty wrap large enough to permit adequate wrapping. Bring 4 corners of foil up together in a pyramid shape. Squeeze ends together; mold foil close to pepper. Seal by folding over ends and pressing to package. Bake one bundle in 350 degree F. oven 45 minutes or until pepper is tender. Label and freeze second bundle. To serve, bake in 400 degree F. oven 40 to 50 minutes. Makes: 2 servings. 145 calories each.

Household word

The low down on cholesterol

By Shirley Bright Boody
Copley News Service

Cholesterol has become a household word, banded about, misunderstood, and feared as a major component in heart and circulatory problems.

The reasons for such questionable notoriety began more than fifty years ago when two Russian scientists produced atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries) in rabbits, by feeding them cholesterol.

To make matters worse, cholesterol was subsequently found to be a part of the atherosclerotic plaque, laid down inside human arteries.

Such plugged-up circulation has been tagged as the forerunner of strokes and heart attacks — certainly one of our major American health problems. Animal studies do not always transpose accurately to human beings.

The precise functions of cholesterol are still not completely understood. It is known to be a part of the cell wall and of the sheath that surrounds nerve fibers. It is also involved in the production of human sex hormones, and of adrenal-cortex hormones.

Large quantities of cholesterol are found in the skin to protect and act as a precursor of vitamin D.

Is this all bad, and should we be so afraid of cholesterol? Of course not! The human being needs cholesterol, and in fact, some is produced by the body itself. The only other way to get it is through the diet, and its distribution is widespread in many foods.

It is in all animal tissue and animal products, such as egg yolk, milk, cheese, ice cream, butter, lard. Sea foods — crab meat, lobster and shrimp are also high in cholesterol.

Strangely, it is not found in plants, cereal grains, fruits or vegetables. They do contain similar sterols but they function differently. Plant sterols and fiber can actually interfere with the absorption of cholesterol while hard dietary fats enhance it.

The polyunsaturated vegetable oils, especially safflower and corn oil margarines, taken in place of butter, can reduce blood cholesterol levels. The amount of human circulating cholesterol can only be derived either from foods or by synthesis in the body, from all tissues, but mostly by the liver.

The diet has a direct effect on the body's own production of cholesterol. Fasting or starvation will lower blood levels. Weight reduction with calorie restriction will have a similar result. Most people take between 500 and 800 mg. of cholesterol daily in their diet.

Today's normal range of circulating blood cholesterol levels is between 160 to 250 mg. This may change tomorrow, however. As research continues, the trend seems to be toward lowered levels and today's normals could be tomorrow's abnormals.

In people over 65 years of age, new studies do not support modified fat or low cholesterol diet. The reason is that many older people do not eat enough food anyway to meet the recommended requirements and to further restrict the fat would place them in nutritional jeopardy.

There is much controversy on this question. It is generally thought that blood cholesterol levels increase with age, rising until the 50s, in men, and then leveling off. In women, the levels rise more slowly, but are sometimes higher in their 50s and 60s.

In a four-year study of 137 elderly women between 75 and 95 years of age, a diet high in polyunsaturates caused significant drops in blood cholesterol levels. They developed a tolerance, however, and despite the continuance of the diet, their cholesterol levels eventually returned to their base figures. This leads some doctors to ignore mild increases in cholesterol and triglyceride levels in elderly people, unless they are also overweight.

The New England Journal of Medicine published an article by Dr. George V. Mann (297-644, 1977) that discounted the effects of the low fat, low cholesterol, polyunsaturated fat diets in the management of high blood cholesterol levels and heart disease. He feels that excessive blood cholesterol is not due to a high dietary intake, but rather to an impairment in the body's normal conversion of cholesterol into bile acids. A buildup of pooled body cholesterol then affects the arteries.

Naturally, many physicians and dietitians will refute this claim. Who is right? No one knows yet, but in the meantime, I will suggest the time-tested diet that has worked for me. It remains low fat, low cholesterol, polyunsaturated oils, high nutrition and controlled calories until something better comes along.

Few know what to do when sick

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

Few Americans know what to do for their own good health or what to do when they get sick, according to a national survey.

Not many in the survey of 2,300 were able to identify more than a small number of beneficial health practices. Only 11 percent, for example, said giving up smoking is a good idea.

Persons taking part in the survey in general are concerned about health matters, but most of them do not know where to go for help or what to do until help arrives. Many of them said when they get sick they want relief, but do not know what that means or where to get it.

The findings are surprising, health officials say, because it has been commonly believed that Americans were quite concerned about their health and knew how to look after it.

The survey was conducted by the Innovative Group, a professional study firm in La Jolla under a $125,000 contract with the American Hospital Association.

Association officials explained they are interested in getting into the area of health promotion and commissioned the study to find out how to do so.

The survey showed a lot of interest in health education programs, but many people are unaware of the programs already available.

Most persons taking part in the survey have a regular physician and dentist. Those who do not primarily are members of the military or a health maintenance organization or believe their health is excellent.

The most commonly recognized good health habits are eating a balanced diet, exercising regularly, maintaining normal sleeping habits and avoiding smoking, a poor fourth. Few were able to think of anything else.

The news media, the study showed, are looked to as the most important source of information about health.

Persons questioned were asked what their first action would be in the event an adult in the home fell off a ladder while painting the house, is conscious but may have broken a leg.

Close to 25 percent said they would call an ambulance. Fifteen percent would call paramedics, 12.7 percent would call a doctor and 11.2 percent would "make the victim lie still."

They were asked what they would do if they awoke at 4 a.m. feeling flushed with severe nausea and stomach pain.

Most of them — 16.5 percent — said they would take a non-prescription drug first while 15.8 percent said they would call a doctor before doing anything else.

Among other responses, 12.8 percent would go to the bathroom in anticipation of vomiting and 11 percent would call a family member or a neighbor.

Significantly, only 4.8 percent of the total sample would take their temperatures first, one of the first things a professional does.

Persons were asked to rate their personal health. Ratings were consistent with 38.3 percent rating their health excellent, 44.3 percent good and 17.4 percent fair or poor.

A vast majority of those interviewed (80 percent) said they have a regular physician. Slightly more than three-fourths said they have a regular dentist.

"I swept my new family off their feet!"

"They were utterly delighted to find a good reliable vacuum in Classified. I wasn't surprised. I had good company. Classified is full of many outstanding bargains in all types of merchandise. I heard some talk of great deals in such things as new and used cars, musical instruments, toys, tools, large and small appliances, and electronic equipment.

"I might also suggest that you make a clean sweep of your storage areas and dispose of unneeded items with a low-cost Want Ad."

and Find Out For Yourself Why You Should Become An Owner/Operator With North American Van Lines

1. Required Investment Reduced $1,600.

2. Compensation Increases With Fuel Costs.

3. Still the Best Way To Go Into Business For Yourself With A Company Behind You.

If you don't believe it, ask a North American Owner/Operator.

He'll tell you that since January he has received compensation increase that average out to approximately 50 cents per gallon of fuel used. He'll tell you how we won't send him to trouble spots and that he can find out where to get fuel just by calling his dispatcher.

Maybe the problems have never been greater, but neither have the opportunities.

The problems will be solved. They have to be or the country won't run. It's that simple. Right now there are families to be moved and products to be delivered. That's why at North American we need more owner/operators.

It used to be that the cost of becoming an owner/operator with North American was $4,600...that included the down payment on a new tractor and living expenses during (if needed) training. But right now the cost is only $3,000. Remember, you won't have an owner/operator who see on T.V. don't have...the benefit of having a big company behind you.

If you're 21 or over, and qualify, you can take advantage of this special opportunity. Call Toll Free 800-348-2191...OR WRITE northamerican
